WRUW announces series of new educational programs

WRUW-FM (91.1 Mhz) has announced a series of new programs recently added to its weekly schedule. The new additions are in the educational programming department of the station.

On Tuesdays at 6:15 p.m. WRUW-FM will present "Latin American Perspectives," a series of programs with Dr. C. Harvey Gardiner, research professor of history at Southern Illinois University, as the commentator. Topics of discussion for the future include the "British Honduras," "The Many Mexicos," "The U.S. Navy and the War for Independence," "Venezuela," "Between Maule and Amazon," "Brazil," "Mexican Art."

Immediately following these programs will be a half hour series on "The Pollution Explosion," on Education established by President Kennedy shortly after his election in 1960. He was chairman of the U.S. Advisory Commission on International Educational and Cultural Affairs, 1962-1964, President Johnson's Task Force on Education, 1964, and of the White House Conference on Education, 1965.

He has written several books and has received the U.S. Air Force Exceptional Services Award and in 1964 was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian award. He is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and Sigma Xi.

The inaugural ceremony will include a procession of several hundred representatives of other academic institutions and learned

Starting at 6:30 p.m., John Daly will narrate the views of legislators, engineers, industrialists, doctors, lawyers, conservationists and even irate citizens as they discuss the pollution of the air and water. These involved individuals will describe the source of the current pollution explosion, the current situation, and the prospect for improving it.

"Outlook '68" adds a new dimension to WRUW-FM programming. Each Wednesday night from 7-8 beginning February 14, this program will attempt to analyze a recurring problem in solving major issues and areas in the world. The analysts, often professors from CWRU, will be chosen for their knowledge in some aspect of the problems discussed. One feature of the program is that listeners will be able to call in questions. Jon Davidson is the narrator.

The songs of Woody Guthrie are heard in "Hard Travelling" at 6:15 on Thursday each week for fifteen minutes. Woody stood head and shoulders above the few articulate spokesmen for and from the American working class, and this series is devoted to him, his music and the context in which he wrote his songs. Some of the topics include the Dust Bowl, the Depression, Unions, and Guthrie's travels and influence on the current crop of songwriters. Malvina Reynolds,

A discussion of the problems facing England today will initiate Outlook '68, a new affairs program on WRUW-FM. Featured on the program, to be broadcast tomorrow night from 7 to 8 p.m., are Dr. Arvel Erickson, professor of English history at CWRU; Dr. H. Pierre Saecher, professor of political science, whose specialty is England; and Dr. K. Laurence Chang, associate professor of economics, whose specialty is international economics, especially in emerging nations. Jon Davidson will narrate the show, and the phone lines to the station ext. 704 will be opened during the hour for listeners' questions.

Pete Seeger, and Will Geer speak of Woody: his life...his music...and his "hard travelling".

"Gadfly" is a half hour program that immediately follows "Hard Travelling" on Thursday evenings. It is a series featuring the usually differing opinions of conservative Clarence Manion of the Manion Forum and liberal Marshall Windmiller of the Pacifica Foundation. A variety of subjects will be covered.

On Friday at 6:30 p.m. WRUW-FM will present "Business Roundtable," featuring a discussion of problems in the world of business.

"Seminars in Theatre" may be heard from 5-6 p.m. on Sundays over WRUW-FM. This is a series of discussions with leading actors, companies, schools, and individuals about their world; the world of acting, the problems of training, as well as those of repertory, and the individual philosophies and values of the participants.

WRUW-FM, is in need of personnel willing to work in any capacity, according to staff member Mark Steinbach. The station is in a sense a small business, and as such it can use engineers or public relations men, broadcasters or tape editors or news gatherers. Anyone interested may come to the station, located in the basement of the Mather building, or call on campus phone extension 704; or 363-3636.

In keeping with the Congress' policy of selling blocks of seats to any organized group, the University Congress would like to invite representatives of campus organizations to the block drawing tomorrow evening at 6:45 in room 306 of the Student Union.

Ticket prices have been set at $2.50 for the main floor and boxes, and $2. for the dress circle and balcony. The only stipulation at the drawing will be that tickets must be paid for in full by check or cash by the end of the drawing.

Other events include a tobogganing trip, and an informal dance in the Student Union ballroom. In keeping with the theme of a happening, several of the events will be unusual in nature.

The NSA resolved that students control admin-hours, social and recreational activities, hiring and administrators, university
services and grading systems.

According to Maxine Stiller, NSA coordinator for Mather Gov., some changes along these lines have been made here, but they come from the faculty, not the students. Bernard Gordon, former coordinator for Adelbert, claims that no NSA resolution can ever be implemented
at CWRU until the fragmented student governments are "federated."

What, then, do the sweeping NSA
resolutions mean to this school?
Right now, it seems, very little.
A referendum is planned in the spring to see how the students feel about the NSA resolutions on such questions as black power,
student power and urban unrest.
Results of these will be sent to
NSA headquarters in Washington.
But implementation of these sentiments, student leaders emphasize,
can only come if groups of students are willing to organize themselves around the various proposals. If CWRU students really feel strongly about black power, says Gordon, they should come to the student councils to see what guidance the NSA can offer toward creating a viable program. Information is readily available from NSA on carrying out a myriad of programs connected with the summer resolutions.
